Prime Chief Lists Top Enemy

New York City—With so-called

Public Enemy No. 1, Alvin Karpis, (born Karpivics), safely behind bars and facing life imprisonment
under Federal laws, J. Edgar Hoover, Director, Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice, denounces that the bandit ever was the country's head enemy. "Palliates itself, interfering with the course of justice, is Public Enemy No. 1, said
the Government's chief man-hunter.
After Karpis' conviction on Federal kidnapping charges, said Mr. Hoover, he will be surrendered to any State wishing to try him on capital charges, "providing that the trial will result in the infliction of the death penalty."

It's a Promise!

St. Paul, Minn.—Arch D. Campbell, seeking the Republican Congressional nomination on this unique basis: "I will do no pointing of pride nor viewing with alarm, will not try to get an office or stay in office on Abraham Lincoln's reputation. I will not mention the far bound coast of Maine or the infested shores of California."

eration bill in peacetime history—$391,669,767 to provide 12

THREE YEAR OLD BOY WANDERS INTO WOODS

A large party of searchers was called out this Thursday noon to hunt for Laurice, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lord, who had been missing since 11 this morning from the Lord home in the Thurston office building at Mayville. He was found before two o'clock about two miles in the woods by Romeo Baker. He was accompanied by Mr. Thurston's two dogs, his companions at home, and was badly scratched but otherwise unharmed.

LAST CHANCE TO FILE WORK SHEET

The Oxford County Soil Conservation Committee met recently and made arrangements for a series of follow-up meetings to assist farmers make out work sheets. The dead line after which no work sheets will be received is May 15, and these meetings will be the last opportunity that men will have to get them in.

While filling the work sheet does not obligate a man to take any part in the Soil Conservation program, it does protect him in case he finds later that he is eligible to apply for a payment. The county committee is not concerned as to whether or not farmers participate in the program, but they are anxious that every man who may possibly want to apply for a payment makes out a work sheet so he will not be disappointed if he finds later that he is eligible.

During the week of May 11 meetings will be held which will cover the county according to the following schedule:

May 12—Brownfield, 1:00; Mexico, Selectmen's Office, 9:00; Rumford Point, The Old Store, 1:00; Norway, Norway Opera House, 9:00; Oxford, Grange Hall, 1:00.

May 13—Denmark, Town Hall,
1:00; North Paris, Community
House, 9:00; Woodstock, Town Hall,
1:00; Lovell, Town Hall, 1:00; Canton, Community Room, High School Building, 9:00; Dixfield, Freeman's
Hall, 1:00.

May 14—Hebron, Hebron Grange
Hall, 9:00; Hiram, Grange Hall,
1:00; Andover Town Hall, 9:00;
Summer, East Sumner Church Venture, 9:00; Buckfield, Farm Bureau
Hall, 1:00.

All time Eastern Standard Time.
Farmers in South Paris may call at the Farm Bureau Office to receive information and assistance in filling out work sheets. In Bethel, Fryeburg and Waterford, farmers may get in touch with the county committees in their respective towns. The committee consists of Edmund Smith, Bethel; Earl Orrison, Fryeburg; and B. W. Fender, West East Fosterville.

All men who wish to attend one of the meetings are urged to be prompt, especially in the forenoon as there are several days when the person in charge must leave in time to attend another meeting in the afternoon.

MRS. J. A. TWADDLE

Mrs. Harriet B., widow of the late Dr. John A. Twaddle, passed away at her home of Church Street at four o'clock this morning. Funeral services will be held at her late home at 2 o'clock, daylight saving time, Saturday afternoon.

Kittredge, "Kitty" to thousands of Harvard students, delivered his last lecture after 46 years of teaching. It is recalled that to settle the Shakespearian controversy he called to Oxford an astrophysicist himself to an Oxford don who failed to catch his name. Our roads seem to be cared for about as the Federal relief works out. A lot of men, plenty of money, and little accomplished. A bit of grading would work wonders on these rough roads and all in the dug outs so one doesn't have to ruin their car trying to travel over them.

Some of the farmers were disappointed not being able to secure a contract to plant corn for the factory this year. They were too late in signing up. Nelson Perham, Arthur Thurlow, Alva Hendrickson and Arthur Thurlow were the lucky ones.

Are You One of the Five Per Cent?

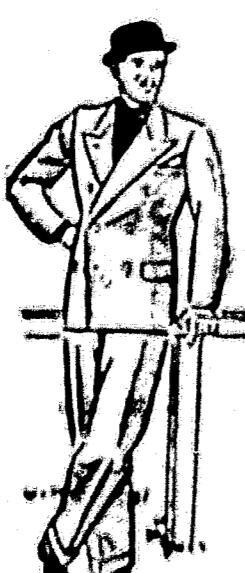

Statistics show that in every community five per cent of the men wear and do pay $50 or more for a suit or coat. While it's true that whether a man pays $12.50 or $75 for a garment he is entitled to the very best his money can buy, it's also true that very few makers of men's clothing qualify or know how to make clothing that is worth $50.

In ready-to-wear apparel as well as in tailored-to-measure custom clothes, Hickey-Freeman is known the world over for the excellence of tailoring and the quality of fabric they offer.

HOT WATER

Hot Water—the magic cleanser—the one greatest aid to health and beauty. Every home has an almost endless need for hot water—but so little thought is given to the method of obtaining it. Some families try to struggle along with tea kettle and furnace coil. Others are slaves to old fashioned heaters that require as much care and attention as an ancient cook stove.

Why not end all this needless effort and annoyance forever. At low cost, every family can enjoy a constant supply of hot water, for every need, always on tap. The modern Electric water heater operates automatically, without attention. It eliminates the costly and wasteful furnace coil—burnishes the ashes, soot and bother of less convenient methods.

The East Bethel Farm Bureau met at the Grange Hall Thursday for a meeting on "Hunting Meat." According to the Cat. Mrs. J. C. Hartlett and Mrs. Gladie Robie had attended a training class at Weston and they had charge of the meeting Thursday. The members present were each expected to help about the dinner and the meat dishes served. A shoulder of lamb was stuffed and roasted, then sold Swiss steak, hamburg steak on onion rings and ground beef on toast were cooked and sampled. Only a small amount of each kind was cooked.

The dinner was excellent consisting of first and vegetable course, meat, soup, salad, macaroni, cake, dark bread and butter, coffee, cream, pudding and coffee.

It was decided to clean the hall before the children's meeting so it would ready to June and the date set for the gathering was May 19. Dinner is to be served at noon by Florence Hastings, Margaret Hollings and Mrs. Estes. The luncheon will be held at the Grange Hall meeting room.

THE BREATHING SPELL.ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual, National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

Natural wish of Congressmen in an election year is to wind up national business as soon as possible and to return home to apply themselves to the serious game of politics. This year, with all forecasters holding that the warfare waged by the major parties will be unusually bitter and relentless, Congressmen have been more than eager to say goodbye to Capitol Hill. But a crowded legislative calendar long ago dissipated hopes for an April or May adjournment. At this writing, there is a reasonable expectancy that Congress will write "fins" by mid-June—but don't be at all surprised if the session continues into the awlerting weather. For little has been done in the way of law-making, and a large number of important bills will have to be either passed or rejected before quiet falls over our legislative halls.

Here is the status of major proposed legislation of present:

CORPORATION SURPLUS TAX

First frost was that this tax would pass easily in joke about the form asked by the President. However, there has been something of a shift of sentiment, and a number of leading Democratic representatives seem very cool to the idea. Business is making felt its belief that such a tax would be ruinous. Upshot is that the House bill is likely to be relatively mild, though what the Senate will do to it is still in the realm of conjecture. One thing is certain: There will be a great deal of debate and plenty of hard feelings before a bill goes to the White House.

CHAIN STORE BILLS. A number of these are pending in one branch of Congress or the other, and some have been entirely lost.

"discriminatory" rebates, etc., have to be viewed. One dealing with "pass-met" the opposition of powerful groups which believe them tactfully unusual and unnecessary, and initial to the consumer interest.

TENNY HOUR WEEK. A bill to force this no business has been pending for several Congressional sessions.

There has a certain amount of support. Not unless all signs are wrong it has no chance to pass.

Not even come up for a vote.

It is a subject of rather speculation as to what will offend business interests. They'd rather

GOULD DEFEATS GORHAM 11-3

The Gould Academy nine played good ball on Tuesday to again defeat Gorham this time by a 11-3 count. Quimby pitched nice ball for the winners, striking out seven and allowing eight well scattered hits.

Small, Gorham pitcher, pitched nice ball the first five innings allowing only one hit, a single by Littlehale. In the sixth inning the fireworks started when Gould collected five hits for five runs. In this inning Young, E. Robertson, Lovejoy and Littlehale singled and Browne drove in three of the runs with a long double. Again in the seventh he hit, this time for three bases, to drive in another run after three had already crossed the plate. Young, E. Robertson, Littlehale, Lovejoy and Browne each got two hits to lead the attack.

For Gorham, Rhuland and Martel got two hits each.

In the opening game of the Western Maine Conference, Gould went down to defeat 8-7 only after a great rally which failed by one run. Gould opened strong to score three runs on two hits and a free ticket to first base. Norway tied the count in the second with three hits and an error by Browne. Again in the fourth they scored three by three hits and an error, this time by Wentzel. In the fifth and sixth they scored one run by two hits in each inning. The winners presented a hard hitting aggregation which came through in the pinches.

Gould's three run rally in the ninth came very near tying the score.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant-looking youth of twenty-three, had come to his summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Especially since he was her lawyer. Gimme that big red book!" Barry obeyed.

"Hood. Graduated from Yale. He wasn't at home, so they tried to get him at his club. Law firm: Hood & Loring. Gimme the telephone book. Just a bunch, but—Okay. The Riverside number's the home of Horace Loring. Somebody had a scientific instinct for observation. "I saw the taxi," he said, "and the woman step off the curb. I knew the cab would hit her, and it did."

"Get the number?" "Of course," the visitor answered. "Took it down as the runaway crossed in front of me."

"He produced a prescription pad. "28047."

Barry wrote it in the note-book to which he had transferred the number of Kelly's lost latch-key.

"How did you happen to be in lower Fifth avenue at that hour?" he asked.

"I went down—some time before—with a very singular person."

"Why do you say he was singular?"

"He acted strangely. At least, I thought so at the time. I picked him up in a tobacconist's shop a few minutes before twelve o'clock. 'Where do you want to go?' I asked him.

"To a drug store," he answered. "There's one in the Flatiron building, at Broadway and Twenty-third street. Take me there."

"It seemed a long way to go for a drug store, but I supposed he knew someone, or wanted a special prescription. Anyway, it was none of my business, and I took him. He gave me a fifty-cent tip, and went into the Broadway entrance. Five minutes later, while I was wondering where to go next, I saw him walk out of the door that opened on Fifth avenue. I started back up.

"About half past one, I picked up a couple that wanted to go to the Brevoort, on Eighth street. I took 'em, and was making for Times square again when the traffic lights stopped me at Sixteenth. Then I saw the woman and the cab. The whole thing was over in a minute. The taxi struck her, went right up on the pavement, smashed a lamp-post, and kept going. But I got the number."

"Then, of course, I jumped out of my cab and went to the

She was beyond help, though. And, by this time, a policeman had turned up, and I decided to move on." He smiled. "A taxi-driver learns to avoid the constabulary."

"So you didn't give the cop that because number?"

"What for? The woman was dead, and arresting some poor, scared taxi men wasn't going to do her any good. I started back to my cab, and whom should I bump into but the chap I'd driven to the drug store. He was coming out of Sixteenth street so lost in himself that he hadn't even noticed the crowd. 'Hello,' I said. 'We seem to be meeting a lot tonight.'

"Who are you?" he asked, curiously.

"I'm the taxi-driver who took you to a drug store on Twenty-third street a couple of hours ago."

"I never saw you before in my life. You've made a mistake," he said. "I live in this street, and I've been home all evening. You never drove me anywhere."

"Have it your own way," I said, and climbed into my buggy.

"I wasn't mistaken, and neither was he. He was in kind of a daze until he recognized me, and then he got almost hysterical. You'd've thought I'd accused him of murder."

The doctor rose from his chair.

"Maybe I'm doing that," he added. "There was a murder that night, you know; in that street. But, of course, you know. Your ad didn't feel me."

"What's the matter with him?"

"Well, my conscience has been troubling me a little," he smiled again. "That's my number, and my name and address, if you want to know. And it will help you, too. We can't help others with CHAPTER II.—Harry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Jr., through his newspaper, accuses Jack of being a gambler. Harry takes orders from Mrs. Winslow, the widow of the man preceding Harry, meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Harry that Judge Hambridge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxi. At home Harry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Harry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Greenan Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's residence to bail her out. The charge: Kelly was a famous detective, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambridge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

CHAPTER IV.—Harry cables Mrs. Ridder for $1,000. Winslow takes Harry's case. Harry gets a job on the telephone, under his true name. The editor, Eddie Hartman, promises him to cover the Kelly murder. Harry suspects the Pillings' servant, Sally. When Harry visits the Hambridge, the judge denies the accident he witnessed occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, where such an accident had occurred. Harry bids him "Watch out step, Mr. Gilligan."

CHAPTER V.—Harry goes to Evans' office, advertising the witness to the fatal accident which occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, believing the taxi driver who had had the murderer as a fare might respond. Rogers is induced

CHAPTER VI

BARRY proceeded to the Duke, quite expecting to find his disguised there.

"I'm going to draw down off 'Duke,'" he thought, "and what have I done for it?"

But Eddie Harwood had excepted the recognition for "slanting."

"The other papers have probably dropped it," he said. "They'll be on the way. Well, we're working quickly, and some day we'll turn up the story. It's good copy now. And I'm glad you know the cops have got the wrong party. What're you doing?"

"I'll see those phone numbers."

Standing over him, Harry pointed out that somebody had made two calls from Kelly's within eleven minutes after the receipt of the message from Betty Barclay. Harwood saw nothing remarkable about that.

"Bet?" Harry persisted, "who was somebody?" Kelly didn't get home till 11, the Phillips says. Mrs. Kelly was in Harris. Who called the Yale Club and the bar on Riverside drive?"

Harwood sat for a newspaper ad.

"I thought so," he observed, his paper an inch of its pages. "Betty Barclay's the dame Mrs. Kelly named when she was going to divorce Kelly."

Harry whistled.

out helping ourselves — making character."

The real Jack Ridder answered that letter without prompting, and the "fake" Jack Ridder posted the answer.

At three Thursday afternoon, he was in his rooms, preparing to quiz the reward-seekers. Barry had reason to know the ways of impostors.

The first caller was just that.

The second applicant was waiting by now — a lunch-counter clerk who'd run out of his place "to see what the excitement was about," but hadn't seen much. On his heels came an exceptionally interesting Jew. He was an M. D., he told Barry, "but business is bad, so I'm out to make a little."

"A little business?" Barry asked.

"Well, I haven't hit anyone yet."

He was thirty-five, neatly dressed, and wore glasses, and his English was pure and undefiled. Moreover, he had a scientific instinct for observation. "I saw the taxi," he said, "and the woman step off the curb. I knew the cab would hit her, and it did."

WILD RIVER CCC CAMP

May 31, 1933, following a rain, a company of 200 newly enroled CCC enrollees under the command of Capt Joseph McGill arrived by truck at a wet, grassy camp in Hastings, Maine. When trucks and busses bogged down in mud, the men began to wade over the sides. Clad in trench coats, and with bullock bags over their shoulders these young men trudged merrily to the site of the new camp and entered into an absolute environment. This was the beginning of Wild River Camp.

The Wild River road, leading from Hastings, Maine, to Wild River Forest Camp and Ranger Station, and the fine fishing, hunting and camping country at the head of Wild River is now being greatly improved. Many residents of Gorham have fished the upper waters of Wild River. They will be able to drive along a fine road to Wild River Forest Camp, walk over a well-maintained trail to Perkins Notch, and spend the night in a camp kept clean and neat by CCC enrollees from Wild River Camp.

The work is not limited to building roads and trails but includes the construction of bridges and buildings. There is a concrete bridge in Evans Notch, over Evans Brook, with a span of 40 feet, which does credit to its builders. The Dolly Copp Administration building is the work of these CCC men, and is an asset used intensively by the campers.

During the winter months, Wild River is far from idle for the men buckle on their snowshoes and work in the woods. Worthless trees are removed and desirable ones are given an opportunity to develop in fine timber. The fundamental idea is that of six trees, it is better to have four good ones, than six worthless ones. Therefore, remove the two which are holding back the other four, and are furthermore no good themselves. A wood supply for the following year is cut. Work on the roads, however, does not cease with the coming of cold weather.

The CCC is one of the few organizations which continue to wield the pick and the shovel when the ground is frozen to a depth of several feet and still show results. Thus it is seen, that, year after year, and in keeping with the season, the CCC enrollees at Wild River are constantly at work on some project which will be of the greatest value to the largest number of people. Wild River is an asset to the communities near by, as well as to the tourist who may drive over the highways during the summer months.

The Forest Service is ever on the alert for possible forest fires. The enrollees at Carter Dome Lookout are the eyes of the detection forces in this area. These men own cooking and housekeeping during the fire seasons of 1932, 1934 and 1935.

The Wild River road, leading from Hastings, Maine, to Wild River Forest Camp and Ranger Station, and the fine fishing, hunting and camping country at the head of Wild River is now being greatly improved. Many residents of Gorham have fished the upper waters of Wild River. They will be able to drive along a fine road to Wild River Forest Camp, walk over a well-maintained trail to Perkins Notch, and spend the night in a camp kept clean and neat by CCC enrollees from Wild River Camp.

The work is not limited to building roads and trails but includes the construction of bridges and buildings. There is a concrete bridge in Evans Notch, over Evans Brook, with a span of 40 feet, which does credit to its builders. The Dolly Copp Administration building is the work of these CCC men, and is an asset used intensively by the campers.

During the winter months, Wild River is far from idle for the men buckle on their snowshoes and work in the woods. Worthless trees are removed and desirable ones are given an opportunity to develop in fine timber. The fundamental idea is that of six trees, it is better to have four good ones, than six worthless ones. Therefore, remove the two which are holding back the other four, and are furthermore no good themselves. A wood supply for the following year is cut. Work on the roads, however, does not cease with the coming of cold weather.

The two schools held a speaking contest at the school building Friday afternoon. This was a preliminary contest to elect the speakers for the contest of the whole School Union to be held at Magalloway on May 22d. Arline Judkins, Sylvia Barnett and Mariah Colby were chosen.

The road commissioner is having the snow fence rolled up and removed from the fields.
